FIELD NOTES

Defending Senior Women's Amateur champion Kristin Shifflett headlines this year's field at The Homestead. She's one of four VSGA members who will return to the resort in a couple of weeks for the U.S. Senior Women's Amateur. Shifflett, pictured, qualified along with Mary Cabriele at Argyle CC in Maryland at the end of June. Kim Palko qualified at her home club, Mount Vernon CC, earlier in the month, and Amy Ellertson qualified in North Carolina in August. The U.S. Senior Women's Amateur begins on Sept. 13 and concludes on Sept. 18. The top 64 players advance to match play after two rounds of stroke-play qualifying. Shifflett is the only one of the four in the field for this event.

- Boodie McGurn competed in the Super Senior division last year but returns to the Senior division for this event. McGurn won Senior Women's Amateur titles in 2004, 2009, and 2015.
- Another player to watch in the Senior division is Sunny Small, who tied for second at the Senior Women's Stroke Play Championship last year at Cavalier G&YC. She also advanced to match play in this event last year, falling to Amy Phelan in 19 holes in the quarterfinals. Phelan is participating in this year's U.S. Senior Women's Open in California.
- Joan Gardner, an alternate for the U.S. Senior Women's Amateur, will look to improve upon last year's showing at The Homestead. She fell in the quarterfinals to Shifflett.
- The VSGA's all-time leader in women's victories, Dot Bolling, will look to add a 15th title to her resume in the Super Senior division. Bolling is a three-time winner of this event, most recently in 2021. She also won the Senior Women's Amateur in 2001.
- Defending Super Senior champion Casey Burley is not in the field, but her opponent in last year's final – Shawn McCullough – is competing. McCullough and Linda DiVall were part of the Mount Vernon squad (along with Gardner) that defeated Bide-A-Wee in a playoff at the recent VSGA Women's State Team Matches at Hermitage Country Club.
- Mimi Hoffman, a five-time winner of the Senior Women's Amateur (most recently in 2019) is competing in the Super Senior Women's Amateur for the first time.
